Construction Forensics Expert Brings More Than 30 Years of Construction and Project Management Experience

WASHINGTON, Sept. 09, 2026 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- FTI Consulting, Inc. (NYSE: FCN) today announced the appointment of Luis Roman as a Senior Managing Director in the Construction, Projects & Assets practice within the firm's Forensic and Litigation Consulting segment.

Mr. Roman brings more than 30 years of experience in construction and project management, including more than 25 years in construction forensics. He strengthens FTI Consulting's construction disputes capabilities, helping owners, contractors, law firms and developers resolve high-stakes claims involving schedule delays, cost overruns, productivity losses, contract disputes and damages quantification.

Mr. Roman has advised clients on projects spanning the power, energy, oil and gas, transportation, industrial, commercial and residential sectors globally. He has provided testimony and expert opinions in numerous domestic and international proceedings, including matters before the Permanent Court of Arbitration, the International Chamber of Commerce, Brazil-Canada Chamber of Commerce, Camara de Arbitraje de Santiago, American Arbitration Association and other leading arbitration forums.

In his role at FTI Consulting, Mr. Roman will support clients with construction forensics, claims and disputes, schedule analysis, delay causation, productivity assessments, cost estimating, damages quantification and expert testimony.

"Large capital projects continue to face schedule, cost and productivity pressures that can create complex disputes for owners, contractors and other stakeholders," said Garrett Fultz, Global Leader of the Construction, Projects & Assets practice at FTI Consulting. "Luis' experience across construction forensics, international arbitration and major infrastructure and energy projects will help clients evaluate project issues with discipline and develop fact-based approaches to dispute resolution."

Mr. Roman is a Certified Cost Professional and Planning and Scheduling Professional. He has received international recognition for his work, including on the Lexology Index Arbitration Expert Witnesses list and in the Lexology Index Brazil report. Prior to joining FTI Consulting, he was a Managing Director at HECT Consulting and spent more than 20 years at Navigant Consulting in the Global Construction practice.

Commenting on his appointment, Mr. Roman said, "We are seeing significant investment in major capital projects across Latin America, particularly in the mining and energy sectors. With that investment comes increasingly complex projects and greater exposure to schedule delays, cost escalation, productivity challenges and contractual disputes. I look forward to bringing my experience in the region to FTI Consulting and leveraging the firm's global expertise to help clients navigate these challenges and develop clear, fact-based approaches when disputes arise."
